Salmonella is commonly found in raw chicken and frozen raw breaded chicken products. Illnesses can be avoided if safe food handling, preparation and cooking practices are followed when preparing these types of food products, specifically by ensuring a safe internal temperature of at least 74°C (165°F). These products should not be microwaved as this method does not generate the appropriate internal temperature for the products to cook properly.

More information on safe internal cooking temperatures and safe food handling, can be found under the Health/Food and Nutrition section of the Government of Canada's website: (<https://www.canada.ca/en/health-canada/services/general-food-safety-tips/safe-internal-cooking-temperatures.html>).

If you have the product at home, please throw it out or return it to your store for a full refund.

We apologize for the inconvenience this may cause.
